WHAT TO CHECK

- Graphics and images Images and graphics with English text can be replaced:
 - If they are not understandable in English
 - If you find an alternative to replace the image in the target language.
- Sources and bibliographical references

An important work is to be done in order to complement or replace ressources in English mentioned in the Mooc. Here are two solutions we adopted within the project.

- Where no substitution is possible: maintenance of the original resource in english (as for example, documents as the AI Watch, JRC publications, aso.)
- Where an alternative resource exists, it can be listed alongside the original resource.

In order to be as close as possible to the local context, the addition of references in the target languages is recommended.

- Reminder about translation quality /accuracy

The translated text are generated by DeepL from one version of the Mooc (we recommand using the english version as a base for further translation). Adjustments to improve the quality of the translation may be required and first proofreading must be carried out; sometimes DeepL interprets signs (such as "*"") incorrectly and there may be discrepancies in the translation (one or more elements of the text have remained in the source language). A first "formal clean-up" of the translation is therefore useful before moving on to the substantive proofreading.
